You are What you listen to

Person 1: Ah, today's topic is about the favorite song. What do you usually listen to, and what type of genre do you prefer?

Person 2: Hmmm, I'm a little confused. Let me try. I'm not really fond of songs, but if people ask me, I usually mention "Kadhal vaithu, Kadhal vaithu kathirunthen" from the movie Deepavali. It's from my childhood, and I don't know why I said it was my favorite, but it was. However, thinking about my blog, I remember the lyrics "Un peru illatha oru pakkama illa" from the song from "Life of Pazham" in the movie Thiruchithrampazham. I have a huge memory with this movie too.

Person 1: That's cool! So, what type of songs do you usually prefer?

Person 2: Mostly seasonal songs that are trending during specific periods, but I'm a bit more fond of high beat music compared to melody.

Person 1: (laughs) So, any memorable songs with your close people?

Person 2: Of course, with my younger brother and my man. They both have a similar taste in music, sometimes giving me a headache, but I still enjoy it.

Person 1: That's funny.

Persona 2: And one more thing, I'm really fond of devotional songs. I enjoy singing them; they can make me emotional, bring tears, make me angry, happy, or joyful – I'm completely involved.

Person 1: Wow, can I ask you something?

Person 2: Yeah, of course.

Person 1: Do you think the songs we listen to can symbolize our character or reflect our mood, maybe even change our mood?

Person 2: Hmmm, I don't know exactly how to say it, but I feel it depends on the individual. Personally, I believe a sad song can make me sad, and a happy song could bring joy. But my man says he feels joy while hearing sad songs.

Person 1: Really? How is that possible?

Person 2: I don't know, but he says something in the music and lyrics expresses his thoughts, helping him overcome sadness.

Person 1: yeah! It might be true, right?

Person 2: it might be, but it won't suit me. I think, for me, "A song could change the mind and soul towards its plays."
